Program Overview:

This course is separated into two segments: lecture and range drills. The lecture portion of the class will focus on technical information, tactical considerations, and table top exercises. It also covers the latest in case law and technology. To ensure students have a full understanding of the subject they are then asked to “teach back” in their own words key concepts, decisions or instructors discussed during the lecture period. Range drills consist of a number of live –fire operational information, tactical application and scenario-based force-on-force training exercises. Participants use a mix of simunition and live ammunition, in addition to protective gear to role play through actual scenarios. Each scenario is recorded and, at the completion of each exercise, reviewed by the instructors.

Additional Topics:

Standard OC Aerosol, Specialty Impact Munitions, Distraction Devices, Chemical Munitions, Proper handling and deployment of OC, Specialty Impact Munitions, Chemical Munitions and Distraction Devices. Legal issues related to the deployment of less lethal munitions and devices. Critical Incident debriefs, Courtroom testimony, case law review, instructor development and student teach back. Instructor development range drills, less-lethal qualification course. Live force-on-force practical scenarios, gas plan development and execution. Exposure drills, target identification scenario, ferret round qualification.

Prerequisites:

Must have attended a 4 Day ICP Defense Technology Program covering OC, SI, CH and DD within the past 4 years. Safariland Training Group only trains Law Enforcement, Corrections and Military SRT.
